

BREWERY CREEK NEWS

Volume 1, Issue 3, May 2012

Brewery Creek News is designed to keep all community members and staff up to date on the comings and goings, mine progress, and some fun facts to keep the laughter and smiles.

Working Together

In 2011, Golden Predator sponsored and hosted a trade mission to Saskatchewan with 18 representatives from 5 Yukon First Nations. The Tr'ondek Hwech'in First Nation, Ross River Dena Council, First Nation of Na-cho Nyak Dun, Ta'an Kwach'an Council, and Kluane First Nation were all represented on the trip.

The idea was to learn how joint venture business models have worked successfully in the Saskatchewan mining industry to create local wealth. It was an education trip and fair to say we all learned a lot about the opportunities realized by the northern First Nations of Saskatchewan and the northern communities in the uranium industry.

My First Brewery Creek Experience

Written by Jane Bell, Communications Assistant

I finally have gotten the opportunity to get out and see our Brewery Creek property. While on my way I really had no idea what to expect. My initial thought was loud, and dark; this is likely my idea of any mine site due to the typical presentation in movies. I was picked up from the Dawson City Airport by a Mr. Fred Taylor, a local Dawson citizen who has worked out at camp for over a year now. We then took off the opposite direction of Dawson and turned left onto the Dempster Highway, after about ten minutes we turned on to the North Fork Road, where a big sign pointed upwards saying “Brewery Creek Project”. I then knew I wasn’t being kidnapped and felt comfortable having the choice of listening to Rap music, or nothing. Clearly I chose Eminem. Arriving on site I was given a site orientation with Cathy Rear and had the pleasure of sharing a work station with Amanda Taylor, the Data Entry Technician.

I hunted down Tyler Bourne, Project Geologist, and Monica Nordling, Project Geologist, and had them take me on their daily routine out to the drill and to do some surveying. Above is the panoramic photo I took of the drill site, if I hadn’t have circled the drill, the chances of you and I finding it were minimal. I was shocked at how large the site was, and how peaceful it really did feel. The food was amazing, the sun was shining, and I had the privilege of learning that each position at Brewery Creek is extremely important to have everything and everyone running smoothly. I hope anyone in Dawson City takes the opportunity to get out to site for one of the site tours being held this coming summer and really gets the feel for what Golden Predator is doing.
